Questions for Reflection and Discussion

- Read Psalm 16 aloud. What "overall feel" do you get from this psalm? Mark the following graph:

Terror Failure
Weakness

Confidence
Strength Victory

Which verses lead you to that conclusion? Discuss it with those who came to a different conclusion.

If you marked the "confidence" end of the graph, how do you reconcile that with v. 1?

If you marked the "terror" end of the graph, how do you reconcile that with v. 8-11?

What do you think is going on? What explains this mixture of emotions?

When you ask God to preserve you from harm (as in v. 1), what do you typically feel—and why?

- In v. 3-4 (see section "2" of Psalm 16, as laid-out on the following page), David the King reveals the integrity he has displayed as the leader of the nation of Israel: rejoicing in those who live righteously and refusing to have anything to do with those who reject Yahweh. How do you think that factors into the confidence displayed in v. 5-11, even though he is in a distressful situation at the moment (v. 1)?
- Tell about the most valuable or precious thing you have inherited (or expect to) from your parents.

King David says that Yahweh—the person of God himself—is his "inheritance and cup" (see v. 5). Concretely and specifically, what do you think it means to make God your "inheritance and cup"?

David was an extremely wealthy king (his net worth easily exceeded $200 billion! 1 Chronicles 22:14), yet in v. 2 he told God: "*I have no good besides you." How do you explain that?

What kinds of inheritance are you laying up to leave to your kids? How will it advantage them?

- Look at section "3" of Psalm 16 (as laid-out on the following page). King David clearly is the speaker. But in v. 10, David must be talking about someone else—someone greater—for that one (Yahweh's "Holy One") won't be abandoned to the place of the dead or rot in the grave! Who could that One be?

What light does Acts 2:22-36 and 13:26-39 shed on this mystery?

Is Jesus your "only good" (v. 2)?

Sermon Summary (Key Text: Psalm 16)

In the opening verse of Psalm 16, King David declares that God is his unshakable refuge. The rest of the psalm helps us understand why all the rest of us need an unshakable refuge—and it tells where to find it! As we will see, that's what Easter is all about!

1. We need an unshakable refuge. In v. 1 David cried out for protection, and then in v. 8, he claimed that he will not be shaken. The need for protection is one of the main themes of the Bible. This need is not confined to David. Abraham too sought safety and stability (Hebrews 11:10 and 12:28). The Scriptures tell us that this present form of the world will pass away. Its foundations will crumble. This is not a safe place. Everything in this world is passing away. It's fleeting, temporary, precarious. Our world has no lasting physical foundation. Physicists tell us that matter is just energy in motion. The second law of thermodynamics guarantees that our world is winding down. Our world offers no lasting philosophical foundation. What is considered to be enlightened thinking today will be obsolete tomorrow! Our world has no stable emotional foundations. We can't even keep our families together!

2. Where can we find an unshakable refuge? In order to find an unshakable refuge—and thereby become unshakable people—we must understand three things: [a] We must recognize the false refuges we reflexively run to (v. 4). Ancient people believed there was a god of war, a god of beauty, a god of fertility, a god of wealth, a god of athletics, a god of wine and parties, and they worshipped these gods. Today, we don't believe those gods exist, but we still run after every one of those things. If we try to find refuge in the wrong place—wealth, sex, partying, sports, social status, etc., you will pay a price. Even if you are part of that lucky minority of people who actually get the things you're running after, they'll start slipping away, and you'll be shattered and shaken. [b] We must recognize that, outside of God, there is no true good (v. 2, 5). David didn't just believe in God, he ran to him. He put all his hope in God. We need to pursue God himself, not the good things he gives. [c] We must recognize that God won't allow death to separate him from those who love him (v. 9-11). The ancient Jews had some idea of the afterlife, but it wasn't very well developed. But here's David saying, "I don't believe God will allow death to come between us." He was convinced that he'd see God face-to-face (in v. 11, the word "presence" literally is "face").

God was so joyful when he created the world that he infused it with his joy. In Genesis, God repeatedly pronounced that his creation was "good", and in Proverbs 8 he talks about the joy he had when he created the world. When God was creating the world, he was in rapture, and some of that joy got permanently embedded in the world he created! The pleasure we experience when we view a beautiful sunset, feel a mountain breeze, smell a rose, or have a great meal, is the experience of the joy God implanted in creation. C.S. Lewis put it this way:

"[The] energies which God's creative rapture implanted in matter when he made the worlds are what we now call physical pleasures; [but] even thus filtered, they are too much for our present management. What would it be to taste at the fountain-head that stream of which even these lower reaches prove so intoxicating?"

The greatest pleasures you've ever had in your life are just far-off hints of what it will be like to be in God's presence! In his presence is fullness of joy! At his right hand are pleasures forever more. This temporal world is not all that there is. It will be shaken, but God has provided for us an unshakable place of refuge, and it is found in God himself.

David was confident of that based only on a prophetic hint (v. 9-11), but we have the prophetic fulfillment in Jesus Christ (Acts 2:22-27 and 13:32-35). What David saw as somehow applied to himself, the New Testament sees as a prophecy that David's descendent, the Lord Jesus, would be raised from the dead. Because of Jesus' resurrection we can take refuge in him. His resurrection is the guarantee of our own (John 6:40)! David was confident that God would show him the path of life (v. 11a), but Jesus is that way (John 14:). Today is Easter Sunday. The resurrection that David anticipated in the future, we celebrate today! Have you embraced him as your Savior? Is he your eternal refuge? If not, he will be—if you'll trust in Him as your Savior.

Digging Deeper in Your Daily Quiet Time

This month we've been studying the psalms—which were meant to be sung!
One of the greatest hymns of all time, A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, is based on one of the greatest psalms of all time, Psalm 46!

Each day this week, slowly and prayerfully listen to it (YouTube) as you follow along in the lyrics.
(Carry these lyrics with you throughout the week, and see if you can get them stuck in your head!)

A mighty fortress is our God, a bulwark never failing;
Our Helper He amid the flood of mortal ills prevailing:
For still our ancient foe doth seek to work us woe;
His craft and power are great, and, armed with cruel hate—on earth is not his equal.

Did we in our own strength confide, our striving would be losing;
Were not the right Man on our side, the Man of God's own choosing:
Dost ask who that may be? Christ Jesus, it is He;
Lord Sabaoth His Name, from age to age the same—and He must win the battle.

And though this world, with devils filled, should threaten to undo us,
We will not fear, for God hath willed His truth to triumph through us:
The prince of darkness grim, we tremble not for him;
his rage we can endure, for lo! his doom is sure—one little word shall fell him.

That word above all earthly powers, no thanks to them, abideth;
The Spirit and the gifts are ours through Him who with us sideth:
Let goods and kindred go, this mortal life also;
The body they may kill: God's truth abideth still—His Kingdom is forever.

God is our "unshakable foundation". As Psalm 16:8 says...

"I always trust the Lord. Because he is close by, I will not be shaken up or hurt."

Buy two matching glasses or tea cups from the thrift store. In your garage or driveway, set up a barstool and a solid table or workbench. You'll need a broom and dustpan too!

That night, at the dinner table, show your children the two matching glasses or tea cups. Ask them which one is stronger. Let them compare them and see that they're both the same.

Then, head out to the garage! Set one glass on your solid workbench—well in from the edge! Invite each child to shake the workbench (as you sit casually on the barstool). Then, have the kids back up, set the other glass on the barstool—and knock it over! Feign surprise that the broken cup was so weak, while the other one was so strong. Let your kids instruct you on why one cup broke but the other didn't. Then, read and discuss Psalm 16:8. Close in prayer.
