Questions for Reflection or Discussion

Starter Question

- From Sunday's sermon, what did you like best, or what caught your attention most—and why?

Observation—As a group, make twenty-five observations from Philippians 2:1-4.

- 2¹ If you have: any encouragement from being united with Christ,
if any comfort from his love,
if any fellowship with the Spirit,
if any tenderness and compassion, 2² then make my joy complete by: being like-minded,
having the same love,
being one in spirit and purpose.
2³ Doing nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit,
but in humility consider others better than yourselves.
2⁴ Each of you should look not only to your own interests,
but also to the interests of others.

Interpretation—What does it mean?

- In what ways do we (1) gain encouragement from being united with Christ, (2) gain comfort from Christ's love, (3) have fellowship with the Spirit? How do we experience tenderness and compassion?
- Assuming that one does indeed experience all of the blessings listed in the "if statements" of v. 1, in what way do the positive and negative commands of v. 2-4 logically and necessarily follow ("then")?
- At <webstersdictionary1828.com>, look up "selfish", "ambition", "vain" and "conceit" (meaning nr. 6).
- Is Paul being selfish ("make my joy complete") in requiring them not to be?! Why or why not? Explain.

Application—What do I do with this?

- In what ways have you personally been encouraged from your union with Christ, comforted by Christ's love, experienced fellowship with the Holy Spirit, received tenderness and compassion? Be specific!
- Looking back at the dictionary definitions of "selfish ambition" and "vain conceit", in what situations are you most tempted to exhibit these traits (1) at home, (2) at work and (3) at church? Be specific!
- Rank the following traits in your life: ☐ being like-minded, united in spirit and purpose with others, ☐ having non-prejudicial love, ☐ humbly considering others better than yourself and therefore looking out for their interests rather than just your own. Where do you most need to improve?

Sermon Summary Text: Philippians 2:1-4

The Apostle Paul is in prison in Rome as he writes the church in Philippi. In the Christian life, faith and suffering go together, so it's critical to have a biblical perspective. We are to imitate Jesus, who is our ultimate example. Due to various afflictions the Philippian church was experiencing, the community had become discouraged. They also were worried about Paul. There is a difference between unity and uniformity. True spiritual unity comes from within; it is a matter of the heart. Uniformity is the result of pressure from the outside. That is why Paul opens this section of his letter appealing to the highest possible spiritual motives (v. 1–4). Since the believers at Philippi are “in Christ,” this ought to encourage them to work toward unity and love, not division and rivalry. For Paul, the remedy was for the church to be like minded—ultimately to have the mind of Christ—where they saw things from His perspective which in turn would lead them to live as He lived, and to love as He loved.

Paul begins by using a Greek literary convention that involves several “if” statements. These statements are designed by Paul to lead to the following conclusion: “If all of these things are true, then complete my joy by living together in unity.” Another way we may look at Paul’s question is: If it is true that encouragement, consolation, and fellowship can be found in Christ, then why can’t you Christians get along with each other? He then goes on to list what it takes to really get along in a way that exhibits a unity of love, spirit, and purpose. There can be no joy in fellowship with others; there can be no unity in the body, when we constantly put ourselves above others. The secret to experiencing a joyful, harmonious life in spite of circumstances, is possessing a humble, submissive mindset (v. 3). The humble person isn’t someone who thinks lowly of himself; he just doesn’t think about himself much at all! It is not that the humble person gives no attention to his own needs. He does. But he doesn’t do so to the exclusion of the needs of others (v. 4). A godly believer’s eyes aren’t focused on himself or herself. Their eyes are always looking upward and outward, not inward! Having a humble, submissive “mindset” doesn’t mean that you become a doormat for others to manipulate. It doesn’t mean that you try to maintain unity by giving in to everyone else’s whims and wishes. In 2 Corinthians 4:5, Paul says Christ first, others second. We should have a humble and submissive “mindset” that is always looking to find ways to serve Jesus by serving others.

Signs of self-centeredness include: (1) frequently interrupting others, (2) constantly seeking attention, (3) having limited interest in others, (4) difficulty sharing credit, (5) difficulty accepting blame, (6) being hesitant to praise others, (7) displaying insensitive behavior, (8) preferring to work alone, (9) having difficulty apologizing, and (10) having frequent fallouts with friends. We need to repent of our self-centeredness and put on the Lord Jesus Christ. We need to allow Him to express His life through us. I want you to think about how having a humble, servant’s mentality might manifest itself for the glory of God in each of these areas: at church, at home, at work, with your neighbors. A humble, servant’s mentality would: (1) be empathetic, (2) practice active listening, (3) be generous, (4) help others, (5) welcome collaboration, (6) express gratitude, (7) put others first, (8) be quick to apologize and to forgive, (9) give credit where credit is due, and (10) experience enduring friendships. If we were focused on loving each other this way at home, at work, at church and in the neighborhood, it would change everything!
